Our Featured Comedian
Doug Benson

It would take too long to cite all of his credits, but here's a small sampling: He has his own documentary called "Super High Me" based on a joke from his standup act. It's available on DVD! How does a little show called NBC's "Last Comic Standing" grab you? Fact: he finished top six in the 2007 season, no big deal. Doug is a series regular on VH1's "Best Week Ever." He also makes recurring appearances on ABC's "Jimmy Kimmel Live." His second "Comedy Central Presents" half-hour special premiered in January 2009. He had the nerve to hit on Jennifer Aniston on the classic sitcom "Friends," is a character on "The Sarah Silverman Program," and oops, almost forgot, got Larry David in a headlock on HBO's "Curb Your Enthusiasm." If that's not enough for you, he's a creator/writer/star of "The Marijuana-Logues", a show that's been a hit (small pun intended) in clubs and theatres from Los Angeles to New York -- and drew a bongload of rave reviews. Now there's a CD, also called The Marijuana-Logues, and a book, "The Marijuana-Logues: Everything About Pot That We Could Remember." In 2006, High Times Magazine, named Doug "Stoner of the Year." He expresses his love of movies on a regular basis on his "I Love Movies" podcasts (available on iTunes). Enough about Doug Benson already!
